Local Antibiotic Delivery in Hip Surgery

Speaker

Mr Antony Palmer

Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon - Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre, Oxford

Tuesday, 14 April at 13:00-13:30

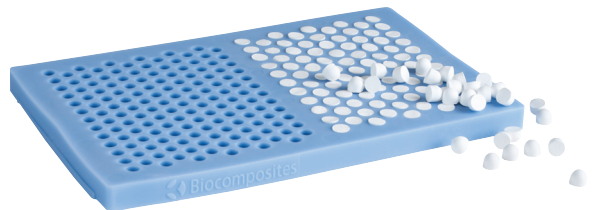

Plenary Room: South School

Antony Palmer, Consultant Hip Surgeon at Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre, and Senior Clinical Research Fellow at the University of Oxford, has extensive experience in primary and revision hip arthroplasty, with a particular clinical and research focus on prosthetic joint infection.

In his practice, he regularly uses local antibiotic delivery as part of infection management strategies, including the treatment of prosthetic joint infections.

The world's only calcium matrix antibiotic carrier approved to be mixed with combination antibiotics and used in bone and surrounding soft tissue to resolve infection
